in high-risk work
environments.

About Us

Vivid is an online safety training company. Making life easier for safety professionals is what we do.

It's simple. We want to provide our clients with three things: accountability, efficiency, and better service than any business, in any industry. We offer alternatives to traditional workforce training, with on demand safety training courses and safety training systems designed for safety pros. And, we build custom training.

Maybe you have big workforce to train, but a small budget. Or, you need to meet industry regulations, but can't keep up with the changes. Or, you're responsible for auditing, and need to get a handle on your safety program, now.

We get it. And, we can help you.

Why We Are Different

There are a couple of big things that define our company.

Collaboration. There are almost no corporate clichés at Vivid. We were a 'tech start-up' before the term was popular, and we've retained that culture for over a decade.

Talent. At Vivid, we actually have safety professionals on staff, along with experienced instructional designers and digital creatives. That's why we're known for having the best safety courses in the industry, and continue getting calls for custom training.

Focus. No other company is as focused on serving safety professionals. We know our audience and share the same mission. Helping to get your workers home safe at the end of each day is our job.

Why You Should Care?

The safety training experience for most companies isn't something people get excited about. It's frequently a boring exercise for the workforce, because a lot of companies don't see the value of investing in a better experience. With old videos and slideshows, or monotonous classroom training, workers just don't engage with important safety training. And if workers in high-risk environments are not 'getting' critical, basic safety concepts, there is an unseen liability. On the administrative side, matching regulatory requirements, manually tracking training with spreadsheets, and preparing for audits, is hard when you don't have the right tools.

There is a better alternative. Moving your training program online.

Vivid's on demand courses, usually completed in around 20 minutes, automatically update when industry regulations change, so keeping current with regulatory requirements isn't an issue. Vivid courses use storytelling, film, and animation to create an engaging, personal training experience that workers find memorable. Because the content is created with industry experts, real life scenarios and safety situations make courses relevant—workers actually learn critical concepts. And, all training activity is tracked for real time reporting, supporting accountability.
